

Ndabaningi Sithole and the MNR had signed a joint agreement "to fight Marxism in Mozambique and Zimbabwe", Johannesburg radio said on 20th August. The agreement had been signed at the end of a visit to Washington by a delegation of the Mozambique National Resistance movement led by Jorge Correia. During the visit, the MNR mission had also held talks with one of President Reagan's most senior advisers, Patrick Buchanan. 1980