

A meeting of the Mozambican and SA Joint Security Commission (JSC), set up seven weeks ago after the signing of a non-aggression treaty between the two countries, began yesterday, government officials said. This is the third meeting of the JSC since the two governments signed the Nkomati Accord under which each state is barred from allowing its territory to be used by forces opposed to the other. No details of the discussions were likely to emerge, officials said. The SA delegation is led by the Commissioner of Police, Gen Johann Coetzee. The Mozambicans are led by Col Sergio Vieira, a Deputy Minister of Defence.
