

Winnie Mandela thanks Soviet Union for help (Text) Winnie Mandela, an activist of the anti-apartheid movement in South Africa, has expressed her gratitude to the Soviet Union for its support in the struggle. In a 'phone interview from (?Soweto) to the correspondent for the Moscow paper 'Izvestiya' in Mozambique, Winnie Mandela pointed out she saw the future of South Africa as a country where people of all races and colour will unite. We firmly believe, she said, in a single, democratic, non-racial South Africa, where all residents will take part in power sharing. ("Radio Peace and Progress" in English 1630 gmt 4 May 86)