[Text] A memorandum on talks held between Mozambique and Cuba on expanding cooperation in the fisheries sector was signed in Maputo today. This is within the framework of the visit that Jesus Benjamin, Cuba's vice minister of the fishing industry [title as heard], has been making to our country over the past week. Cuba has been cooperating with Mozambique on small-scale fisheries since 1978, particularly in the region from Ibo Island to Maputo City.

Tenreiro de Almeida, secretary of state for fisheries, signed the memorandum on behalf of Mozambique. He said at the occasion that Jesus Benjamin's visit to Mozambique is a contribution to the strengthening of relations between the two countries.
