SEVENTEEN students, including two Mozambicans, graduated from the Zimbabwe College of Forestry in Mutare last week.

Eleven of the students received diplomas in forestry and six, including the Mozambicans, received forest ranger certificates from the acting Minister of Natural Resources and Tourism, Cde Simbi Mubako.

Cde Mubako said the Mozambican students were fore-runners of a stream of SADCC students who would be trained at the college. Next year's intake would include seven students from Swaziland. The minister said that building of the new forest centre on land opposite the college would start next year.
