MAPUTO. — A section commander in the South African-backed MNR bandits surrendered to the Mozambican authorities in the northern province of Niassa because he was "tired of suffering", according to a report in yesterday's issue of the Maputo paper Noticias. The commander, Jose Goa, said life in the bandit camps was "horrible", and that many other MNR bandits would like to escape, but are afraid that they will be caught and murdered. — Ziana-AM.
