[Text] In operations from January to mid-February, the FPLM forces in Nampula Province's Mogovolas, Angoché, Moma, and Mogincual districts released more than 2,500 people living under the yoke of the armed bandits.

In the same districts during the same period, the Armed Forces killed 95 criminals and more than 40 collaborators. A military source told our correspondent in Nampula that another 400 peasants had turned themselves in to the provincial authorities after a long period of bandit-enforced captivity.
