

Bandits of the South African backed MNR sabotaged the power supply to Maputo on 15 November, for the third time in less than a month. The transmission lines from South Africa were also sabotaged on 3 November and 28 October. The saboteurs struck on 15 November at a spot about 18 kilometres east of the frontier post of Ressano Garcia. This latest sabotage took place just a few hours before a meeting of the Mozambique/South Africa Joint Security Commission was due to start in the Mozambican capital.
