

Tears for her president

GRACE Machel, widow of Mozambique's President Samora Machel (left) who was killed in a plane crash just 200 yards inside the South African border last weekend, weeps over his coffin during funeral rites today in Maputo. Among those comforting her is the bearded Marcelino dos Santos, second-in-command of Machel's Frelimo Party. Rumors are rife in Mozambique blaming the fine Pretorian hand of South Africa in the downing of the president's plane.
