[Text] In Maputo yesterday, Mozambique and Algeria signed a 2-year cooperation accord covering the areas of agriculture, forestry, training, and trade.

According to AIM, within the context of agriculture the accord provides for expanded cooperation in the field of food production through Algerian technical and material support for Maputo's 1 November agricultural production unit.

The same source disclosed that in the field of forestry, the two countries have agreed to develop the production of wood in Cabo Delgado Province through a joint enterprise [word indistinct].

Within the context of training, the two countries discussed the possibility of sending Mozambican students to study in Algeria and Algerian aid to education in Mozambique.

In the field of culture, the two sides agreed to develop exchanges in the areas of the press, television, and cultural and sporting activities.

The accord was signed by Jacinto Veloso, Mozambique's minister of cooperation, and Mohamed Aberkane, Algeria's deputy minister of cooperation in foreign affairs.
