

Mozambican-South African security commission meeting "most positive" yet The Mozambican-South African security commission met in Maputo on 18th April, Maputo radio reported. Lisbon radio cited "a participant" as saying it had been the most positive meeting the commission had held so far and that "it was the first time since the commission was re-activated that mutual accusations were not exchanged". The radio reported that the two delegations had agreed to make no comment on the meeting "in the interest of the two countries".
