

Aid for refugees: Mozambique has been given nearly R500 000 by Britain as a contribution towards a programme to repatriate and resettle refugees and displaced people in the newly-independent country. The donation amounts to nearly

Refugees: needing help To the Point

10 per cent of the R5 076 500 target set by the UN Commissioner for Refugees, Sadrudin Aga Khan, in his appeal of April 16 and is the largest to date. Earlier contributions have been made by Brazil, Denmark, Japan, the Netherlands, Norway and Switzerland. Under the UN programme, Mozambicans who fled their country during the struggle for independence are being aided to return and resettle in their villages.